Dear Members

I hope everyone has been enjoying the late spring/early summer weather. There are numerous community updates:

As you all have heard 2023 is the Burleith centennial year and we have a variety of special events planned. Next up is the annual Burleith Summer Picnic, which will be at the Green Lot (Whitehaven and 37th) on Saturday, June 10th from 3:30–7:00. We will have live music, activities for children, Rocklands BBQ, and a variety of other special activities. As always, local dignitaries such as Mayor Bowser and Councilmember Pinto are invited. But, the best part is to celebrate and reconnect with neighbors. Let's hope for good weather because there is not an alternate date or venue.

We also hope to have more details soon about the design and unveiling of the planned welcome signs to Burleith. Hopefully these can be unveiled in the summer or early fall. We will be fundraising for this, so be on the lookout.

Over 100 people—neighbors old and new and the many local friends of the neighborhood—attended the Burleith Centennial Gala on Friday, March 10, 2023 in the beautiful Copley Formal Lounge on the campus of Georgetown University. A cocktail hour was followed by a buffet dinner, celebratory cake, and a champagne toast. We had short speeches by Ward 2 Councilmember Brooke Pinto, representatives from Mayor Muriel Bowser's office, ANC Commissioners Kishan Putta and Elizabeth Miller, and me. The night culminated with a wonderful history presentation by local amateur historian Dwane Starlin and then a spectacular performance by the Ellington Jazz Combo. The BCA received celebratory letters from the DC Council, the Mayor, and Advisory Neighborhood Commission 2E.

Heartfelt congratulations are extended to our gala co-chairs Meryl Chertoff and Sarah Wetzel for the months of effort they dedicated to pull this off. Other essential volunteers included Nazy Morad, Gail Juppenlatz and Linda Brooks, who worked the registration table, and BCA Treasurer Linda Hall for all the behind-the-scenes accounting and payments. For their generous financial or in-kind assistance, the BCA would also like to thank Lenore Rubino with Washington Fine Properties, MedStar Georgetown University Hospital, and Georgetown University, particularly the Office of Neighborhood Life. For more details, check out this webpost <https://www.burleith.org/whatsup/2023/4/14/burleiths-centennial-gala> and the full set of pictures: <https://jamiesuteraphotography.shootproof.com/gallery/20998886/home>

Many residents have expressed concern about the installation of a temporary generator/chiller in front of Hardy Middle School on 35th Street near T. Given the incessant noise and emissions, this is an unacceptable health hazard for the immediate neighbors—and for many others because the noise ricochets off our townhouses. This is a repeat of exactly the same situation from 2021—not even to mention similar noise issues about 10 years ago. And the authorities are saying that the new chillers they need to install may take 12-14 months! They have promised that the hours of operation will be 6 AM-6 PM Monday through Friday. The BCA and ANC have been all over this and we will continue to advocate vehemently. Ideally, they will find longer hoses and locate the temporary unit behind the school (off 34th Street). But, they seem intent on hoisting the unit on top of the roof. I am skeptical to say the least.

We have been working with the ANC and city agencies on a comprehensive, neighborhood-wide plan to address the rat issues that have afflicted many neighbors. City authorities were out in the neighborhood at the beginning of May but may have missed some blocks. We also need to do our part. Broken green bins need to be replaced—particularly the lids. Please report this to 311—even if it takes a long time to procure. Make sure that all the bins in your vicinity are closed after garbage day. And please be cognizant of how you dispose of trash. The authorities mentioned that tossing food delivery containers directly into the bins is a massive problem. Rinse away any food residue and make sure that everything is properly bagged. On a related note, our spring cleanup will likely be on the morning of Saturday June 17th.

I wanted to let everyone know that I am representing Burleith on the Community Advisory Committee of the Georgetown Access and Circulation Study being run by the Department of Transportation. There will be several open community meetings in May, Fall 2023, and early in 2024. I think it is important that we are aware of any plans that could affect the neighborhood, as well as advocating for our preferences. I will provide updates as they occur.

Finally, the BCA is deeply involved with efforts to ensure that the hospital complies with agreements regarding trash and parking in the neighborhood. This is, however, an on-going effort, especially as they rush to complete everything later this summer.

As always, feel free to drop the BCA a line at bca@burleith.org. We are always looking for volunteers, especially in this busy centennial year.

See you at the picnic!

Focus on: Maria Bouroncle, Author of IT CAME TO ME ON A WHIM: The Story of Ingeborg Andersson, Child Murderess

By Forrest Bachner

Burleith resident, Maria Bouroncle, was born in Gothenburg, Sweden in 1965 and spent the summers, until she was eight, with her grandparents and her Aunt Ingeborg in a small village called Molla. She remembers her Aunt Ingeborg with love, a chubby older woman who enjoyed playing cards, making cakes, weaving, and biking. She also remembers that her aunt could be moody, keeping to her room, or that she might launch into projects, bursting with energy. In 1999, when Maria was 34 and her grandparents and Aunt Ingeborg were long dead, she received a call from a cousin one day asking if she knew that Ingeborg, at age 27, murdered her three children, Tor, 5, Efraim 4, and Lucia, 15 months, in a washtub in 1929 while her husband went out to chop wood. The cousin, an occupational therapist, had heard the story from a patient.

With that call, Maria's life changed. Ingeborg's story, a secret hidden for eighty years by Maria's family, became Maria's story, eventually in the form of a novel based solidly on historical records and letters—a beautifully and warmly, yes, warmly, written book about a seemingly happily married wife and mother who one day decides, on a whim, to drown her children. The novel, which Maria wrote in Burleith, was first published in Swedish in 2018 and has now been translated into English, Dutch, and Finnish and in the process of being translated into Italian. Manil Suri, best-selling author of The Death of Vishnu, called the book, "A riveting read—haunting, atmospheric, and ultimately, heartbreaking."

An award-winning short documentary, The Child Murderess of Vesene, is based on the book, which is required reading in UCLA's Scandinavian Crime Literature course.

I talked to Maria, an economist in international development who moved to Burleith in 2002, about how she came to write the book, her research, and what she hopes people will take from Ingeborg's story.

So, you got this call about your great aunt. Then what happened?

I was angry. I felt these three children had been deleted from history. When I contacted my family, I learned that my mother, aunts, and uncles all knew that Ingeborg killed her children but they didn't know when, how, why, where or what happened afterwards. They had all come up with different explanations they had either invented or heard from someone. But everyone was very reluctant to talk about it. I kept the secret, too, for a time. I had just had my second daughter when I got the call, and I didn't want to take it in. Also, I loved that aunt. Around 2011, I decided I had to look into the story for myself. I spent seven years researching and writing the book.

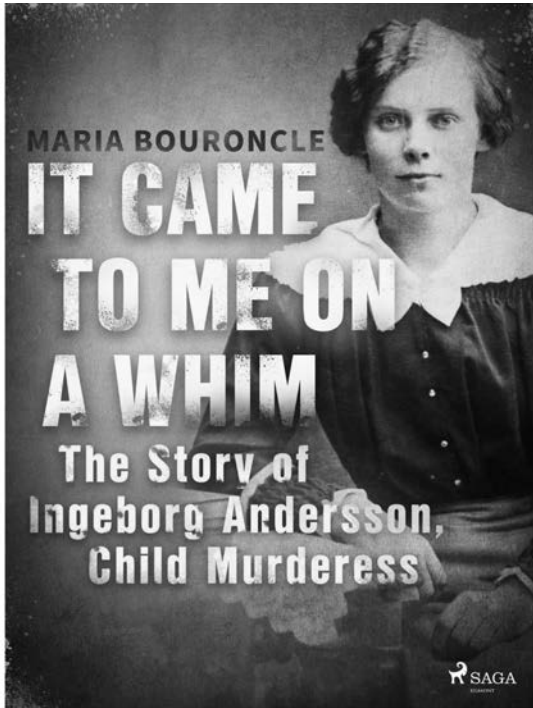

From the beginning, it seemed people attributed the murders to mental illness, but they wanted it to be kept secret. Do you think the family tried to keep the murders a secret out of shame or fear of being associated with mental illness?

I think my great grandparents probably felt some shame, because it was their daughter, and therefore they may have felt responsible. The photos of the children were destroyed and their gravestone buried. On the other hand, relatives on Ingeborg's husband, Artur's, side were remarkably understanding and kind to Ingeborg. In the book, her mother-in-law makes food and gives her warm bricks for the ride to prison. I wonder if as in-laws they felt no shame. It was one of Artur's descendants who eventually gave me Ingeborg's letters to Artur from prison and the hospital. These letters are incorporated into the novel.

Your book opens with the invitation to the children's funeral signed from Ingeborg and Artur. I was pretty shocked by that. I think the funeral invitation tells a lot about Artur and his family. I think it's incredibly kind that they included Ingeborg's name, despite their grief.

How did you go about your research? Swedes keep records of everything, so I was able to see records from everywhere—prison, school, and hospital. I also visited hospital museums and read a lot of nonfiction books about life in prisons. I also read a lot of local history to see how people would have talked and lived.

Ingeborg's prison doctor diagnosed her with schizophrenia with depressive episodes. Do you think that was right? I don't know. In those days, all women with any mental health issues were given one of two diagnoses, either hysteria for upper-class women, or schizophrenia, for all others. I have wondered if it could have been a post-partum issue or bipolar disorder.

Can you talk about the hospital system where Ingeborg lived? It seemed remarkably humane. The staff was so kind and Ingeborg appeared to be genuinely happy there. Before the 1900s, the mentally ill in Sweden were treated like animals. During the 1920s and 1930s, however, there was a humane window. Large beautiful buildings were built in scenic spots overlooking lakes and cities, and therapy programs included craft, weaving, and gardening programs. Patients and staff were encouraged to think of the hospital as a community. The belief was that all of this would have a good effect on the patients. Staff also thought of their work as a calling to help people, not just a job. Nurses weren't even allowed to marry and have families. After World War II, the theory changed, medication became the norm and later on, people were moved back to their homes. Those beautiful buildings are now mostly condos and office buildings.

Did you ever feel that you came to understand Ingeborg? If you could sit down and talk to Ingeborg, what would you most like to ask her? I don't think I'll ever understand Ingeborg, but I'd say I've forgiven her. I did that when I read her letters to Artur for the first time in 2016. If I could sit down with her, I think I'd just be silent and hold her hand and listen if she would want to say anything. It would be too difficult to talk or ask any questions.

What do you most want people to take from your book? I would like to normalize mental health problems. I dream that mental health issues will one day be thought of and treated in the same way as any disease, for example, diabetes.

JOYS & ANNOUNCEMENTS

Congratulations to Nekhi "Kai" Roberts who is heading to the Rochester Institute of Technology this fall. He graduates this year from Sandy Spring Friends School.

T Street will miss the residents of 3619 who graduated from Georgetown University this May. Michelle Kleytman is an incredible water polo player who played all of her life and traveled to do so. She is extremely boisterous and loves politics, and hopes to work on a campaign or in the political sphere after college (exact job to be determined still!). Zoe Tara Zeigherman is moving to New York City to pursue her passion for film. She majored in English and minored in Film and Jewish Studies. She has worked on a film production in Berlin during COVID shutdowns, and recently finished her own short film. She is also a fashion icon. Kian Blewett is a musician, an incredible drummer and singer. He has been putting out music since freshman year. Kian studied Culture and Politics and is also moving to New York City where he hopes to go into publishing, but as a free spirit, his roommates say, "we'll see what he does!" Maxim Krukov studied History and recently finished his thesis. He is also 3619's part-time DJ, full-time history nerd. He is really interested in European history, particularly how it relates to Russia. Maxim is moving to Montreal to pursue work at a Think Tank and continue being a free spirit. Lexie Meger is not graduating because she's doing a fifth year to complete an Art major alongside her nursing major. She expects to love college and soak it all in while it lasts – for one more year.

Local artist Dr. Angela Iovino is displaying watercolors and oil paintings at Peacock Café on Prospect Street throughout May and June sales are tax deductible and all proceeds benefit ward 8 children's academic studies.

Nancy Lensen-Tomasson published a book, "Women of the Ivory Coast and Mali: Photographs of a Heritage." The book features 45 black and white photographs which were made in 1989 and 1992, and documents the contributions of women in villages. Since that time, civil wars and terrorist attacks have impacted these cultures and many customs may no longer be practiced.

Charlotte Ann Bradham was born on December 22. Parents Austin, Jenny, and big sister Eloise couldn't be happier! Lainey is also pretty pleased.

The Bradham Family in their recently completed renovated home welcomed baby Charlotte in December.

Anne Paterno celebrates a milestone birthday this July. Wish her a happy, happy birthday when you see her famous trio walking around the neighborhood.

A very happy fourth birthday to Ned Garback, spotted celebrating with dozens of friends and unlimited juice boxes at Volta Park in May.

Rachel Levy, a native of Burleith who grew up here and is the daughter of long-time and current residents Ed and Mary Levy, is the Democratic candidate this year for the 59th District seat in Virginia's House of Delegates. The District is outside of Richmond, and consists of most of Louisa County, western Hanover County and the Town of Ashland (where Rachel and her family live), and a portion of Northern Henrico County. You can read about Rachel and her campaign at <https://rachelfordelegate.org/>

A tremendous cheers to Meryl Chertoff and Sarah Wetzel for the months of effort they dedicated to planning a fabulous gala that delighted more than 100 neighbors.

Neighborhood Reflections: Springtime is my favorite season in Burleith not just because our small enclave is home to so many azalea bushes, vibrant clumps of crocuses, surprising irises, and more daffodils and tulips than I can count, but also because our neighbors emerge from their homes and get into those very gardens. I find my family spend significantly more time tidying our front yard than our back yard for a variety of reasons. One is because my mother's voice is constantly in my head, wondering what will the neighbors think about those weeds? Another is that our backyard doesn't have a "turf slide" next door for our one-year-old to play on. But the biggest one, I think, is that in the front yard the likelihood of a neighbor stopping to chat is infinitely greater, and any chore is more pleasant when it's shared with company. When I pick up my spade and debris bag I always hope it coincides with Max's walk time, or maybe Quinn and Findlay's stroll. If you see me in the front yard – say hello. Pretty soon I might have a cosmo or zinnia stem to offer you. If you stumble upon Eric working his green magic on the corner at 35th Place and T, stop and visit. Sharing the joys of spring with everyone passing by is my favorite thing to do in our little slice of the world
 – Alicia Amling, T Street

In April, Georgetown University opened the Yarrow Mamout Masjid, a first-of-its-kind campus mosque. Kishan Putta invited new T Street neighbors Dr. Neelam Khan and Mohammad Ali to the Grand Opening, and they brought their son Shah. Welcome the three of them to T Street, and welcome the Yarrow Mamout Masjid to campus!

Kishan Putta, Dr. Neelam Khan and Mohammad Ali celebrate at Georgetown University.

Cheers to all the neighborhood children who recently celebrated their First Holy Communion – we spotted a handful of very well-dressed kids streaming to Holy Trinity for the special day recently.
